

WRITTEN BRIEF

On the 8th of July, my client, Escudos, was contacted by the defendant, landshaking, for a loan to fund a mining company, the initial request was 1000$ but the plaintiff later offered 3000$ in exchange for some equity, the defendant said himself that the company wasn't registered and we also have no actual proof of its existence. The plaintiff accepted a 3k loan at 0% interest that had to be returned in a month. On the 9th of July the defendant messaged my client saying and I quote "Have fun filing a lawsuit to recover nothing, bye!". To this day, the defendant hasn't shown a single proof nor an attempt at trying to return the sum he got loaned.
